Ford not ruling out Pride

Mayor's stand-in heckled and booed at the raising of the Pride flag over city hall

After spending the morning with Toronto Maple Leafs general manager Brian Burke, who is marching in this year's Pride parade to honour his late son, Mayor Rob Ford finally opened the door to some participation in the huge gay-pride celebration.

"One day at a time," Ford told reporters yesterday when asked if he will go to any activities during the 10-day festival. The event began Friday and ends Sunday with a parade expected to be attended by hundreds of thousands of Torontonians and visitors.

Ford emerged from his office wearing a Leafs jersey and said he spent the morning touring the ACC with Burke. Asked if Burke invited Ford to join in marching with family members of gays and lesbians, the mayor said: "It was a confidential meeting."

Burke's son Brendan was killed in a car accident in February 2010, not long after the 21-year-old former goalie, working with a top-ranked university hockey program, went public with the fact he is gay.

Brian Burke's acceptance of his son's orientation was heralded across the continent. He marched in last year's Pride parade to honour his son's memory.

"Pride isn't just a queer issue, it's a community issue. And it's a giant 'screw you' to the city to not turn up," said Erin Filby, a 32-year-old self-described "heterosexual housewife" who lives in the Church-Wellesley area.

Ford has said he cannot attend Sunday's parade because he has an annual family commitment at his cottage. Deputy Mayor Doug Holyday, among others, has suggested that Rob Ford attend a non-parade event to quell accusations he is homophobic.

United Way invests $78.7M in Toronto

The United Way will offer its member agencies special one-time grants as it invests a record $78.7 million in Toronto this year.

The funding is buoyed by the organization's 2010 fundraising campaign, which raised a record $113.2 million.

United Way Toronto president and CEO Susan McIsaac announced details yesterday during the charity's annual general meeting at the Royal York hotel.

McIsaac said a one-time grant will be available to each of its member agencies on top of their annual funding. They will be eligible for grants of up to two per cent of their operating budgets — a total investment of $1 million across 150 member agencies.

The organization froze agency allocations during the recession, with the freeze continuing until the end of this year, McIsaac said.

Makeover causes a ruckus

Oshawa councillor accused of breaking election rules by not reporting $200K worth of help

Amy England, before: Snaggle-toothed, unstyled hair, baggy sweats.

Amy England, after: Hollywood smile, chic bob, designer wardrobe.

The aspiring Oshawa politician went from sloppy student to polished professional in a televised beauty makeover last year.

Face, teeth, hair, makeup, laser eye surgery, clothing, shoes, promo photos — England had the works as a team of experts injected the "glitz and glam of Hollywood" into her campaign. Months after Cosmo TV's The Candidate episode of Rags to Red Carpet aired on W Network, she won a seat on Oshawa council.

That's where things get ugly.

England, 30, is accused of breaking election rules by not declaring what critics are calling a major freebie on her financial statement.

Council watchdog Bill Steele is demanding a compliance audit, saying England violated the Municipal Elections Act by failing to report what he estimated was $200,000 worth of gifts, services, production costs and airtime that all helped her get elected. Steele says he spent months researching and consulting with industry people to arrive at that figure.

"I've done everything in accordance with the act and in consultation with a lawyer and chartered accountant."
COUN. AMY ENGLAND

Under the act, the maximum a contributor can give a candidate in money or in-kind goods or services is $750. The spending limit for candidates is $97,779.

If England is found in violation, she could face a fine or removal from office.

But she denies any wrongdoing, saying the products and services were payment in-kind for being on the show.

THIRD-LARGEST EXPENSE

City debt $4.4B and climbing

The City of Toronto's net debt increased almost 20 per cent in 2010, to $4.4 billion at the end of the year. The increase means that paying off principal and interest will continue to be the third-biggest expense facing taxpayers, said Coun. Doug Holyday.

The police department's budget, almost $1 billion, represents the single-biggest expense, followed by the TTC.

Payments on the city's debt are expected to total more than $400 million this year — more than the $370-million cost of operating the fire department. The debt grew by $721 million in 2010; as of Dec. 31, 2009, it was $3.7 billion.

A staff report said one factor that drove up debt was the $253 million borrowed to repair Toronto Community Housing Corp. units. The housing company, which has 58,000 units, has warned the repair backlog continues to grow.

Court rules judge had bias in woman's trial

Deemed a rare move, judge thrown off case after refusing to postpone a trial for a woman fighting cancer

LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Krystal Hill

In a rare decision last week, the Ontario Superior Court has removed a lower court judge from a case for "bias" after refusing to postpone the trial of a young Toronto woman fighting Hodgkin's lymphoma.

Peter Thorning, Toronto-based lawyer for Krystal Hill, had to use what's described as an "extraordinary remedy" in law to prevent his client's trial from going forward after a London, Ont., judge, Gregory A. Pockele, refused to postpone it in November.

While Hill was waiting to learn whether six months of chemotherapy and radiation treatments for her cancer had worked, Pockele looked at her in a London courtroom on the first day of the trial, offered his sympathies, and refused to postpone the hearings.

Hill was charged in 2009 for refusing to take a breathalyzer test, weeks before her diagnosis.

By the time of the trial, she could barely make the car ride to London from Toronto, let alone contemplate defending herself. Thorning went in armed with medical documentation, hoping the judge would be sympathetic.

"She was in court wearing a wig," says Thorning, a senior partner of Brauti Thorning. "She just finished chemo and radiation therapy, and the day before the trial she was basically supposed to find out if she would live, but that appointment got postponed. The system completely breaks down if every party in the courtroom doesn't treat each other with respect."

Turned down, Thorning immediately filed an application with the Superior Court to have Pockele removed from the case. The trial was, effectively, adjourned, and last week Pockele was cited for "bias" by Justice John C. Kennedy, who stated the conduct suggested a "state of mind" that is "closed with regard to particular issues."

Trekkies await city's first Star Trek Day

Toronto's Trekkies won't have to travel far for their next fix.

The city is hosting its first-ever Star Trek Day, slated for Oct. 2 at the Toronto Underground Cinema on Spadina Avenue.

The idea for StarTrekDayTO came about on Twitter after the success of Star Wars Day, which was held May 4 (the slogan was "May the fourth be with you"), event organizer Sally Christensen said.

"Some people were like, 'Why isn't there a Star Trek day?' and we said, 'I don't know, why don't we just do one?'"

The day's organizers are a group of people calling themselves the "nerd mafia."

JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Leonard Nimoy, who played Spock in the original Star Trek series.

The itinerary includes trivia, a costume contest and movie screenings — Christensen said they will likely be Star Trek II: Wrath Of Khan and one other. The evening portion will be 19 and over and include comedy, music and even a Star Trek-themed burlesque show.

Doctor 'squandered' second chance

Treated female patients despite ban, watchdog told ◆ Licence had been reinstated in 2009 after five-year suspension

HENRY STANCU/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

A Peel Region doctor, accused of touching a female patient's breast while already under a restricted licence for allegations of sexual abuse and harassment, admits he "squandered" a second chance to practise medicine.

But Dr. David Stuart Lambert, who could have his licence revoked for the second time, says he did not sexually abuse the woman as she and the college claim.

Lambert, who is facing the disciplinary committee of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario for the third time in his career, should not have even been treating female patients. It was one of the many strict limitations placed on his licence in 2009, when he was reinstated as a doctor following a five-year suspension.

He was also barred from selling his various wrinkle creams to his patients, due to the conflict of interest, and he could not administer cosmetic treatments or anything not covered by OHIP.

"Almost immediately upon his return to practice, Dr. Lambert repeatedly breached all of these term restrictions and limitations," said Carolyn Silver, the college's lawyer.

Lambert pleaded guilty yesterday to the professional misconduct charges that he breached the limitations on his licence, and not guilty to the allegation of sexual touching. Four months after Lambert's licence was reinstated, the college sent two private investigators to Lambert's clinic, ostensibly to receive a cosmetic medical procedure, according to allegations from the college.

One of the private investigators, who cannot be named, testified yesterday that Lambert "swiped" the back of his index finger across her right breast and nipple when she handed him a consent form.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Dr. Lambert

- In 1991, Dr. David Stuart Lambert's licence was suspended for six months after the college found he made "a series of derogatory and demeaning comments of a sexual nature to patients."
- Then, in 2002, his licence was revoked after the college found Lambert sexually abused one female patient, made sexual remarks to two others and acted unprofessionally with another by trying to sell her skin care products.
- The college decided in June 2009 to reinstate Lambert's licence, albeit with very strict conditions. He was only allowed to treat adult male patients, had to see a therapist, practise under supervision, and refrain from selling skin care products.

Danforth's 'big hole' filled with mixed blessings

Neighbours call it the "big hole" — an empty, weed-ridden plot of land with a torrid history that sits on the Danforth Avenue near Woodbine Avenue.

A massive fire in 2001, one of the biggest in Toronto's history, destroyed Woodbine Building Supply, the empty lot's former occupant. One arsonist died in the fire and another was seriously injured.

John Magno, 53, one of three brothers who co-owned the store, has been charged with second-degree murder, accused of hiring others to organize the blaze. Yesterday, the jury began its deliberations.

During the trial, the prosecution alleged Magno did it for the insurance money. But there's another twist: The brothers also own JFC Properties, the company behind a bid to build new condos in the "big hole." Before the fire, the brothers had made plans to demolish the store and build condos on the lot. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

California can't be kids' video watchdog: Court

No tradition in United States of restricting children's access to depictions of violence, top court judge says

JOE RAEDLE/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Video games on sale at a U.S. game store.

The U.S. Supreme Court yesterday refused to let California regulate the sale or rental of violent video games to children, saying governments do not have the power to "restrict the ideas to which children may be exposed" despite complaints about graphic violence.

On a 7-2 vote, the high court upheld a federal appeals court decision to throw out the state's ban on the sale or rental of violent video games to minors. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Sacramento had ruled that the law violated minors' rights under the First Amendment, and the high court agreed.

"No doubt a state possesses legitimate power to protect children from harm," said Justice Antonin Scalia, who wrote the majority opinion. "But that does not include a free-floating power to restrict the ideas to which children may be exposed."

The California law would have prohibited the sale or rental of violent games to anyone younger than 18. Retailers who violated the act would have been fined up to $1,000 for each infraction.

More than 46 million American households have at least one video game system, with the industry bringing in at least $18 billion US in 2010.

But Justice Clarence Thomas, who dissented from the decision wrote, "The practices and beliefs of the founding generation establish that the freedom of speech, as originally understood, does not include a right to speak to minors (or a right of minors to access speech) without going through the minors' parents or guardians."

Lady Gaga sued over Japan fundraiser

A lawsuit filed in Detroit claims music star Lady Gaga is misleading her fans with an online pitch for donations for victims of the Japan earthquake.

Lady Gaga's website is selling $5 US wristbands that say, "We Pray For Japan.''

The website also allows people to make additional donations and says "all proceeds go directly to Japan relief efforts."

But the lawsuit notes that sales tax and a $3.99 shipping charge are added.

Detroit-area attorney Alyson Oliver believes not all the money is going to help the Japanese.

The lawsuit was filed Friday in federal court in Detroit and seeks class-action status and possible refunds for people who bought wristbands.

Baird visits Libyan rebels

Foreign affairs minister 'surprised, pleasantly' at calibre of council

John Baird said the group preparing to take power once Libya's dictator, Moammar Gadhafi, is ousted has a strong dedication to democracy. But he added no one should expect that transition to take place overnight.

Baird's trip to rebel-held Benghazi was his first major one as foreign minister, aside from a jaunt to the G8 summit in France last month. It came as a stalemate between Libyan dissident groups and Gadhafi forces prompted questions about whether the NATO-led bombing campaign in Libya is working.

"It was important to me to come here and get the facts for myself," Baird said.

Canada recently joined European and Arab countries in recognizing the National Transitional Council as the legitimate representative of the Libyan people.

Baird spent half a day in the city and met for 30 minutes with coalition leader Mahmoud Jibril, followed by a meeting with council board members. Behind closed doors, Baird presented Jibril with a letter from Prime Minister Stephen Harper inviting him to Canada to meet with officials and parliamentarians.

The council is setting itself up as an alternative to Gadhafi. But some of Canada's allies fear the council's military strength and political know-how are too thin to do the job.

ISRAEL DELAYING AID TO

Country pressuring Greece to halt flotilla to Gaza, organizers say 9 activists died in Israeli raid last year

Organizers of a flotilla to challenge Israel's sea blockade of the Gaza Strip say they will sail any day now, but are struggling to overcome delays they blame on Israeli pressure. They have held regular news conferences to talk up their campaign, but are so cautious they refuse to say where their boats are docked.

Dire warnings and diplomatic sensitivities shadow the politically charged plan to deliver aid to the Palestinian territory. The looming fear is a reprise of a similar mission a year ago that ended when nine activists on a Turkish vessel died in a raid by Israeli commandos who rappelled on board from helicopters in the pre-dawn darkness.

Several hundred activists, many from Canada, Europe and the United States, plan to board 10 boats, including two cargo vessels carrying medicine and other aid, for a journey of several days across the Mediterranean to Gaza. They say their operation is peaceful.

Israel has warned it will thwart any attempt to breach the sea blockade of the Palestinian territory.

Activists view Israel's blockade of Gaza as a human rights violation.

The Israeli government dropped a threat to issue lengthy deportation orders against journalists on the flotilla. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Journalists OK'd

- The earlier Israeli warning to journalists sparked an outcry from foreign journalists and was debated prominently in the Israeli media. After that, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said he ordered authorities not to apply the government's regular policy against infiltrators.
- His office said the government also agreed to let journalists on Israeli navy ships "in order to create transparency and reliable coverage of the events."
- An Israeli official, speaking on condition of anonymity because he was discussing internal deliberations, said journalists on the flotilla would be released by Israel and not be subject to deportation.

Young mom's murder trial grips U.S. viewers

Prosecutors portray Anthony as an uncaring, hard-partying mother

Courtroom drama full of twists

It has become one of the most-watched murder trials since the O.J. Simpson case and has galvanized a nation with its lurid, shocking details.

Indeed, the U.S. soap opera that is the Casey Anthony first-degree murder trial seems to be the only thing on all-news channels these days, and is expected to send reporters into a frenzy next week as the jury begins deliberations in the sad, sordid affair.

Anthony, 25, is the now-notorious Florida mother accused of killing her two-year-old daughter Caylee in 2008. She first made headlines when she claimed her daughter was kidnapped by a nanny, sparking a five-month search for the little girl.

▶ Caylee Marie Anthony

But investigators soon turned their attention to Anthony.

During the five-week trial in Orlando, prosecutors alleged Anthony murdered her daughter June 16, 2008, by smothering her with chloroform to make her unconscious, and then covered her nose and mouth with duct tape to suffocate her.

HMV sells Canadian stores to British firm

- Retail restructuring specialist Hilco UK pays $3.2M
- HMV retains some of debt owed by Canadian unit

The new owner of 121 HMV stores in Canada has agreed to invest up to $25 million to fund the evolution of the national music, video and game retailer as it adjusts to the new world of digital entertainment.

Paul McGowan, chief executive of Hilco UK, said yesterday that HMV Canada's management team has a plan to maintain sales of CDs, DVDs and Blu-rays at its stores, though he didn't go into details.

Cost cutting

- HMV Canada scaled back the size of its flagship store near Yonge and Dundas streets earlier this year to make way for a discount clothing retailer in efforts to cut costs.

HMV has been gradually reworking many of its Canadian stores to focus on a broader selection of music- and film-related products, including T-shirts, headphones, video game controllers, mobile phones and other electronics, in an effort to curb declining revenues as disc sales weaken and more shoppers opt to download content.

HMV has been in Canada since 1986 and originally sold primarily music. The retailer has been struggling to overcome the downturn in physical media sales, which has been a challenge because HMV's brand was originally built on records, cassette tapes and CDs.

BARING THE TRUTH ABOUT LINGERIE

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

Women are better dressers than men; even when they're undressed.

Nine out of 10 men arrive in the bedroom clad in novelty print boxer shorts or a pair of briefs with elastic that gave up three weeks ago. Strangely, they expect their female bedmates to put a little more effort into their costume choices.

This is what keeps Victoria's Secret in business.

The bright pink lingerie mecca is an exhilarating place to be. Undergarments are mounted in displays with their own built-in lighting. Walls are lined with fragrances that have ambiguously sexy names like Fantasies, Attractions and Bombshell and all smell exactly the same. There are 11 different styles of underwear. ELEVEN.

After roaming the cavernous rooms of bras and body lotions, you enter a boudoir-like dressing room that will make you feel like you're preparing to go on stage at the Moulin Rouge. Inside the dimly lit cubicle you will struggle into a corset-style contraption that actually makes you look amazing. With lace, ribbons and plenty of boning, it's possible to convince yourself that you, too, are worthy of a pair of angel wings.

"For the next 30 minutes you are the sexiest woman in the world. You ooze sensuality as you strut through the mall; nothing could kill your buzz. Until you get home."

Before you know it, you're intoxicated on the scent of Very Sexy Summer and you have dropped $200 on an embroidered baby doll and two containers of mango temptation body butter.

For the next 30 minutes you are the sexiest woman in the world. You ooze sensuality as you strut through the mall; nothing could kill your buzz. Until you get home.

Back in the harsh reality of your well-lit apartment you begin to think that maybe you don't actually look that fantastic squeezed inside this torture device masquerading as underwear. All of a sudden those feathers don't make you look fun and flirty; they make you look like a slutty Muppet.

Worst of all is the realization that nothing in your wardrobe is capable of concealing this getup. You would need to wear a burlap potato sack in order to hide the awkward lines and protruding ruffles attached to the apparatus that is now trying to suffocate you.

Since real life doesn't permit "let me slip into something more comfortable" opportunities, you will ultimately decide to ditch your fancy lingerie in favour of a practical tummy-trimming spandex number with a decidedly un-sexy name like Spanx. This, of course, will lead to the eventual Bridget Jones moment you have been dreading, where you are discovered to be the sensible, high-waist, control-top woman that you have been trying to hide all along.

Worth mentioning

OTTAWA. Canadians are a talented bunch with a lot of bright ideas — but we struggle to cash in on those ideas. That's the conclusion of a new report by an advisory body to the federal government on science and technology matters.

The Science, Technology and Innovation Council's report, to be released today in Ottawa, found Canadian businesses don't spend nearly as much on research and development (R&D) as other countries.

And that could affect Canada's ability to turn ideas into products and services that can be sold globally.

"An excellent talent pool and increased efforts by government, higher education and some industries are not preventing stagnation in Canada's overall innovation performance," the report says.

"Despite an overall economic performance the past two years that has exceeded that of its major trading partners, the current level of effort by all performing sectors has not been sufficient to bring Canada's expenditures in R&D to the G7 average."

Iran ready to monkey around in space

Iran says it plans to send a monkey into space next month as the next step in a space program that Western leaders worry could also bring major advances in Iran's missile arsenal.

The state-run news agency IRNA quotes the head of Iran's space agency yesterday as saying that five monkeys are undergoing tests and one will be selected for the flight on a Kavoshgar-5 — or Explorer-5 — rocket.

Last year, Iran announced it had launched a rocket carrying a mouse, turtle and worms into space.

The U.S. and allies are concerned the technology in the space program could also be used to develop long-range missiles with possible nuclear warheads.

Iran denies it seeks nuclear arms and says it wants only energy-producing reactors.

COUNTRY SUPERSTARS COMING TO TOWN

ALAN JACKSON, BIG & RICH AND GRETCHEN WILSON TO PERFORM AT THE CAPITAL ONE BLACKCREEK SUMMER MUSIC FESTIVAL

It's easy calling Alan Jackson a country music superstar.

His impressive resumé – he's sold nearly 60 million albums worldwide, topped the country singles charts 35 times, and scored more than 50 Top 10 hits – certainly attests to that.

But, to what can we attribute his massive popularity?

Michael McCall, a writer and editor at the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum, has the answer.

"As consistent as he is, his music sweeps across a wide range, and he brings in Cajun, honky-tonk, bluegrass, swing, gospel, blues and simple singer-songwriter styles into what he does," McCall says. "That he does all this, yet always sounds wholly like himself, puts him in a rare category of someone like Merle Haggard. He embraces such a wide swath of music, yet makes it all his own."

Jackson performs with Big & Rich and Gretchen Wilson on Thursday, July 21 at 7 p.m. at the Rexall Centre at York University, as part of the new Capital One BlackCreek Summer Musical Festival.

Clearly, Jackson isn't just an American phenomenon.

He kicked off his 2011 tour last February with three sold-out shows in Oshawa, Sudbury and Kingston. When the shows went on sale, more than 15,000 tickets were sold in less than an hour! In March, he embarked on his first tour of Australia, playing a string of sold-out shows over the course of two weeks in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane.

Big & Rich were initially shunned by the Nashville mainstream for injecting a funnier, rowdier and looser vibe to the music, but their star has risen over the past few years.

The two announced their arrival on the scene with the novelty hit, Save A Horse (Ride A Cowboy), in 2004 and their albums, Horse of a Different Color, Comin' To Your City and Between Raising Hell and Amazing Grace, were met with critical and commercial success.

The New York Times once described Gretchen Wilson's voice as "brash and precise and slightly worn, with a hint of whiskey and cigarettes" adding that "it's hard to think of anybody on the radio right now who can outsing Ms. Wilson."

Wilson exploded on to the country music scene in 2004 with her smash hit, Redneck Woman, and has since scored three number one albums. Her first book, the autobiographical Redneck Woman: Stories from My Life, landed her on the prestigious New York Times bestseller list.

FESTIVAL HAS SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Embracing music styles as varied as pop, jazz, classical, world and country music, the first annual Capital One BlackCreek Summer Music Festival offers something for everyone.

The 14-week festival, which kicked off June 4, takes place at the Rexall Centre on the grounds of York University. The amphitheatre seats up to 11,000 people, depending upon seat and stage configuration for the individual performances.

Jeff Melanson, Cultural Adviser to Toronto Mayor Rob Ford, says that until now, the city "has not seized the opportunity to create a large-scale, outdoor summer destination for audiences to see and hear an eclectic mix of the world's leading musicians, singers and entertainers. "BlackCreek changes that dynamic and at the highest level of artistry."

Tickets for all the concerts can be purchased at blackcreekfestival.com or by calling 1-888-860-7888. The box office is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. – Errol Nazareth

PAISLEY, CHURCH READY TO ROCK THE STAGE

Brad Paisley has come a long way since getting his first guitar at age eight and giving his first public performance at church two years later.

He has since won three Grammy Awards, 14 Country Music Association Awards and 14 Academy of Country Music Awards, which includes five consecutive Male Vocalist awards.

Not only does he sell truckloads of records, but Paisley's H20 World Tour played to more than 879,000 fans last year, and Pollstar named it the number one country tour for attendance. Paisley's 2011 tour, H2O II: Wetter & Wilder, kicked off in Pittsburgh at the end of May and will include dates in London, Dublin, Stockholm and Oslo.

You can see one of modern Nashville's biggest stars when he plays the Rexall Centre at York University on Thursday, July 7 at 7:30 p.m. Paisley will share the stage with Eric Church.

Paisley is admired equally for his brilliant guitar playing and song-writing, and he isn't afraid to challenge his audience with songs like Welcome to the Future, which tackles the American south's history of racism and was inspired by Barack Obama's election victory.

Eric Church got an early start in music, too. He began writing songs at 13 and taught himself how to play guitar.
He released his debut album, Sinners Like Me, in 2006, and it was a critical and commercial success. The disc produced radio hits How 'Bout You, Two Pink Lines, and Guys Like Me. His second album, Carolina, which came out in 2009, has sold more than 500,000 copies.

At the end of July, Church, who was crowned Top New Solo Vocalist at this year's Academy of Country Music awards show, will release his third album, Chief. He calls it his most unique and fearless work to date.

SEE THINGS DIFFERENTLY?

AGO'S NEW EXHIBITION IS MADE FOR YOU

The world around us is filled with traditions — some good, some bad. It's an artist's role to challenge these traditions, and thereby challenge the assumptions we make about who we are and what we believe. General Idea was a group of Canadian artists who did just that, and the Art Gallery of Ontario (AGO) wants you to know all about them.

Opening July 30, Haute Culture: General Idea — A Retrospective, 1969–1994, will feature 336 works by the multidisciplinary group, including some not exhibited for more than 25 years, occupying more than 20,000 sq. ft. of gallery space in the Vivian & David Campbell Centre for Contemporary Art. The AGO will also install the artists' two-metre-tall, lacquered metal AIDS sculpture at the corner of Dundas West and Beverley streets. Haute Culture is conceived and organized by the AGO in conjunction with the Musée d'Art moderne de la Ville de Paris, and curated by Paris-based independent curator Frédéric Bonnet.

Formed in Toronto in 1969, General Idea was a collaboration between artists AA Bronson, Felix Partz and Jorge Zontal. Their work, says Bonnet, revealed "a complex combination of reality and fiction, and of parody and rigorous cultural critique."

"Their visionary influence has only become more apparent with the passage of time."

WANT TO GO?

When: Haute Culture: General Idea — A Retrospective, 1969–1994 runs from July 30 to Jan. 1, 2012.
Where: Art Gallery of Ontario, 317 Dundas St. W.
Price: Included as part of a general admission ticket to the AGO
AGO members receive exclusive early access to Haute Culture at the Members' Preview on Wednesday, July 27, from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

A NEW YORK STATE OF MIND

AGO BRINGS THE TITANS OF MID-CENTURY ART TO TORONTO

Starting in 1940s America, a group of men and women began painting in new ways: Drizzling paint from cans to canvas; pressing found objects like buttons and bottlecaps into their works; abandoning recognizable forms in favour of pure shape and colour. These many, varied artists became known as the Abstract Expressionists, and by the 1950s, their revolutionary work had catapulted New York City to the centre of the international art world. From now until Sept. 4, Torontonians visiting the Art Gallery of Ontario (AGO) can see firsthand what all the fuss was about.

Abstract Expressionist New York displays more than 100 works from the collection of The Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) in New York, representing legendary artists like Jackson Pollock, Mark Rothko, Robert Motherwell, Joan Mitchell, Franz Kline, Lee Krasner, and Willem de Kooning. Going beyond painting, the exhibition also features sculptures, drawings, and photographs considered part of the movement. The AGO is the only international art museum given the opportunity to share these highlights, which Matthew Teitelbaum, the AGO's Michael and Sonja Koerner Director and CEO, calls "a tremendous honour."

"[You'll see] not only the most important and well-known works in MoMA's collection, but also key works by lesser-known artists, such as Norman Lewis and William Baziotes," adds Glenn Lowry, Director of MoMA. "Taken together, they provide an extraordinary overview of Abstract Expressionism in New York and a unique insight into one of the most important American art movements of the 20th century."

What were the Abstract Expressionists trying to tell us? "I paint not the things I see, but the feelings they arouse in me," said Franz Kline. At the end of the AGO's exhibit, children are invited to write down their own feelings. One wrote this:

"I love it beceas it is butiful."

WANT TO GO?

When: Abstract Expressionist New York: Masterpieces from The Museum of Modern Art runs until Sept. 4.
Where: Art Gallery of Ontario, 317 Dundas St. W.
Price: Free for AGO members and children 5 and under, $25 for adults (general admission price included); $21.50 for seniors; $16.50 for full-time students and youths aged 6 to 17. You can also buy a Family Pass (two adults and up to five youths) for $62.50.
Tickets can be purchased onsite, or online at ago.net.

HONDA INDY CELEBRATES 25 YEARS IN TORONTO

EVENT INCLUDES FASTEST RACING SERIES ON PLANET, CELEBRITY ATHLETES, LIVE ENTERTAINMENT AND MORE

In celebration of 25 years of racing on the streets of Toronto, the Honda Indy Toronto — Ontario's single largest annual sporting event — will feature the highest levels of Indy, stock, touring and, for the first time, exotic car racing.

The Honda Indy Toronto, which takes place from July 8 to 10 on the streets surrounding Exhibition Place near Lake Ontario and downtown Toronto, features a week-long festival-like atmosphere that includes the fastest racing series on the planet, celebrity athletes, live entertainment and interactive activities.

The marquee attraction continues to be the IZOD IndyCar Series with its lineup of popular drivers including Dario Franchitti, series champion and winner of the 2010 Indy 500; Will Power, winner of the 2010 Honda Indy Toronto; Helio Castroneves and Scott Dixon, past winners of the Indy 500; Marco Andretti, son of Michael Andretti, driver with the most wins in Toronto; Danica Patrick; and Graham Rahal, son of Bobby Rahal, winner of the inaugural Indy car race in Toronto in 1986.

"Fans appreciate diversity, accessibility and quality in our weekend schedule," said Charlie Johnstone, vice president and general manager for Honda Indy Toronto. "We could not hope for a better lineup to celebrate 25 years of racing on the streets of Toronto."

Returning races include the NASCAR Canadian Tire Series, Firestone Indy Lights and the Acura Sports Car Challenge, which will feature the Canadian Touring Car Championship. An exciting new addition will be the debut of the Ferrari Challenge, a unique racing series that allows Ferrari owners and enthusiasts to see the legendary cars in their natural environment: The race track. This is the first year the Toronto event has featured an exotic car race.

"The Ferrari Challenge is a premium series with universal appeal," said Kim Green, co-owner of Green Savoree Toronto, ULC, promoters of the Honda Indy Toronto. "Its addition to our schedule speaks volumes to the prestige and heritage of this Toronto hallmark event."

DAN AYKROYD NAMED GRAND MARSHALL

Canadian actor Dan Aykroyd will serve as Grand Marshal at the Honda Indy Toronto 2011 event, which celebrates 25 years of racing on the streets of Toronto.

The multi-talented Aykroyd is a comedian, actor, screenwriter, musician and winemaker. He has had an extensive career that includes his role as an original cast member on Saturday Night Live, creator of The Blues Brothers and Ghostbusters. An Ottawa native, Aykroyd was made a member of the Order of Canada and has been inducted into Canada's Walk of Fame, honouring him for his contributions to the entertainment industry.

"I'm delighted to be a part of an event with so much history," said Aykroyd. "I'm a long-time race fan and very proud to be Canadian. It'll be nice to come home and take in a spectacular day of racing."

When the 2011 IZOD IndyCar Series stops in Toronto on July 10, Aykroyd will perform the standard Grand Marshal duties that include giving the famous "drivers, start your engines" command to start the afternoon's race. Aykroyd will also meet the IZOD IndyCar Series drivers, tour the INDYCAR paddocks and take a pace car ride. His participation will also include promotional considerations for his Crystal Head brand of vodka.

"We are delighted to have Dan on board," said Charlie Johnstone, Vice President and General Manager of Honda Indy Toronto. "Dan has the type of character that resonates with all Canadians. He is a big supporter of events across the country, and he will no doubt make for a great ambassador to the Honda Indy Toronto."

Tickets to the 2011 Honda Indy Toronto, which takes place July 8-10, are available at: HondaIndyToronto.com/tickets or by phone at 1-877-503-6869.

FREE FRIDAY

Friday July 8 is FREE FRIDAY at the circuit! All grandstands and paddocks will be open to the public free of charge. No ticket required.

To order by phone, call the ticket hotline at 1-877-503-6869, or go to HondaIndyToronto.com/pricing

Back in the writer's seat

Nia Vardalos teams up with Tom Hanks (again) to write Larry Crowne ◗ She dishes to Metro on working with Hanks, her latest project and heading to Winnipeg this summer

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Actress, writer and director Nia Vardalos admits that she actually loathes writing — except when it's for Tom Hanks, who's been a close friend and colleague since he produced her first film, My Big Fat Greek Wedding.

The pair teamed up for the script of Hanks' latest, Larry Crowne, so hopefully that writing experience wasn't too terrible. Metro caught up with the Winnipeg native to talk about working with Hanks, heading home this summer and the legacy of her breakthrough film.

How is Tom as a boss?
Well, besides the alcoholic blackouts, he's awesome (laughs). Clearly, you see him. He's one of the most gregarious, fun-loving, well-read, interesting people I've ever met — who happens to be married to my fantastic friend, Rita Wilson. They're just a stellar, shining example of people who have maintained their civility and humanity in a cesspool of an industry. And I just love them both.

What makes the three of you click so well?
We're all dorks, and we like to laugh at ourselves and each other.

It's been almost 10 years since My Big Fat Greek Wedding.
Isn't it hilarious? Just today in Times Square, a gaggle of beautifully black-haired Japanese girls screamed when then saw me. They were all going for their cameras, and this one girl kept bowing and saying, "I am Toula! I am Toula!" That makes me cry. That's a really cool feeling.

How have you dealt with the pressure of having such a big hit right out of the gate?
Some people ask me that, but I just don't feel it. I don't think of things that way. I'm such an optimist, I feel no pressure whatsoever. I don't look at anything in terms of monetary success because that's rather gauche.

I just kind of look at it as that movie opened so many doors for me. I met fantastic people, I had dinner with the Queen of England and I met Elton John, and these are not things that I ever aspired to. I never even dared to hope that they would happen. So I don't think of anything as a pressure. It's just, "What's next?"

You're going home to Winnipeg soon to film an American Girl movie.
Yeah, I'm really excited. I'm giddy about getting the chance to go back to Winnipeg and spend some time with my family, but also that I got offered a role that I didn't write. I think I Tweeted out that it's another sign of the rapture.

What are you looking forward to most about going back?
I'm looking forward to hanging around with family, and my daughter having time with grandparents and cousins.

And also I'm actually a huge fan of the American Girl series because they promote girl power without being anti-boy, and I like that. I don't believe in an us-or-them mentality. Even with Bridesmaids making such a huge splash, I didn't see it like, "Yeah! One for the women!" That is, I feel, pandering to us. We know we're funny. It's one for comedy. I just love that entire movie, and that's how I feel about American Girl — not the same, G versus R. But, it's about empowerment and about being your best you without it being at the expense of another of the other gender.

An R-rated American Girl movie would be very interesting, though.
You're right, you're right. We should write that.

Barney's Version
Genre: Romantic comedy
Director: Richard J. Lewis
Stars: Paul Giamatti, Dustin Hoffman

The single greatest feat of Barney's Version may be the cohesive movie that emerges from Mordecai Richler's shaggy horndog of a novel about a score-settling Montreal philanderer (and possible murderer).

It took 12 years and much sweat for producer Robert Lantos to bring to the screen the late Richler's final tome, which spans decades and countries plus multiple wives, a missing pal and other dilemmas.

The Barney of the book, sounding very much like Richler himself, promises us "the true story of my wasted life."

Director Richard J. Lewis and screenwriter Michael Konyves tilt toward bittersweet romantic comedy rather than whodunit, making this sprawling entertainment one of the most successful adaptations yet of a Richler novel.

Paul Giamatti makes an engaging Barney, adroitly negotiating multiple femmes, meddling family and a cumbersome ghost. But a hilarious Dustin Hoffman is the real draw as Barney's rascal dad.

PETER HOWELL

Season of the Witch
Genre: Fantasy action
Director: Dominic Sena
Stars: Nicolas Cage, Ron Perlman

Nicolas Cage and director Dominic Sena last united 11 years ago for Gone in 60 Seconds, a heist flick remake that had the good sense to remain stupid.

Cage back then was also doing fun knuckle-draggers like Con Air and Sena was not long off the juicy pulp of California.

Both had a knack for elevating trash. Now they just shovel it, as per Season of the Witch, which sets Cage and Ron Perlman as 14th-century rebel knights fighting the Black Plague, Satan and boredom. They lose that last battle.

Extras include deleted scenes, an alternate ending and featurettes.

PETER HOWELL

Sucker Punch
Genre: Fantasy action
Director: Zack Snyder
Stars: Emily Browning, Abbie Cornish, Jena Malone

Zack Snyder's latest kinetic exercise is best described as a girl-powered Sailor Moon anime crossed with Russ Meyer sexploitation.

It provides sporadic seconds of splendid eye candy separated by minutes of muddled exposition and flat acting.

Set in the 1950s and shot with a similar desaturated colour palette as his Spartan hit 300, it begins as our late-teen heroine Babydoll (Emily Browning) is framed as the cause of a family tragedy.

Dressed as a saucy schoolgirl, like her fellow beauties in bondage, Babydoll is sent to an insane asylum where mental illness is treated with deprivation, abuse and lobotomies.

Babydoll finds virtual escape through her mind. Each time she goes into a dance trance, a different set of villains emerges: zombie German soldiers from World War I, Asian battle robots with Pinocchio noses and glowing red eyes, and so on.

After a while you might wish, as I did, that you could just watch Babydoll dance. No such luck.

True Blood's voice of reason

AMBER RAY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Alongside all of the sexy, scary, supernatural goodness that makes True Blood as addictive as V — that's vampire blood — a couple of regular ol' humans are making a play for the series' best storylines.

The frontrunner? Tara Thornton, played with grit and vulnerability by Rutina Wesley, gets another chance to steal scenes as Season 4 started Sunday night. We checked in with the actress to find out what bad — and good! — things are in store for her this summer.

Tara got mixed up with some bad vampires last season. Are things looking brighter now?

We are finally going to see happiness for Tara. Definitely some stability — she is more stable — and powerful. She has started going to the shrink and she has learned how to love herself in a way that is beautiful and secure. I think it is nice to see because we have seen her suffer so much. And she may have a smile on her face.

The writers really put Tara through the wringer.

I kind of like where they have been taking me. That doesn't happen all the time but I really trust them. They haven't given me anything that I've been like, "Wait a minute." A lot of the time, I've been like, "Does she have to suffer so much?" and "Do I really have to cry in every scene?" But those are challenges, and I just have to cry for 18 hours.

▶ A new study shows that low vitamin D levels can lead to higher MS susceptibility.

MS linked to low sun

New study lends credibility to the theory that vitamin D a modifiable factor in disease risk ◐ Experts speculate it leads to abnormal response

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

It's a wicked combination that puts people at risk for multiple sclerosis: Low levels of sunlight plus "kissing disease."

Researchers at the University of Oxford in the U.K. have found that people who live far from the equator (in countries like Canada) and have had mononucleosis are at much greater risk for developing MS.

"It is an important finding because it adds weight to the possibility that vitamin D can be considered a modifiable factor when it comes to increased MS risk," says Karen Lee, a scientist and assistant vice president of the MS Society of Canada.

Researchers in England studied records for Britain's National Health Service over seven years; they identified 56,681 cases of MS and 14,621 cases of mono. They also studied NASA data on sun intensity over the country. They found that the effects of sun exposure plus mono together explained 72 per cent of variance in the occurrence of MS across the U.K.

"This study adds to increasing evidence implicating low vitamin D exposure to higher MS susceptibility."
DR. KAREN LEE

They speculated that not having enough vitamin D in your body leads to an abnormal response to the very common Epstein-Barr virus, the virus that causes mono.

Perhaps vaccines for the Epstein-Barr virus, as well as widespread use of vitamin D supplements, could lead to fewer cases of MS, they reported.

"This study adds to increasing evidence implicating low vitamin D exposure to higher MS susceptibility," says Lee. "Additionally, it directly links two well-known suspects in MS susceptibility — vitamin D and the Epstein Barr virus."

The U.K. study was published in the prestigious journal Neurology.

Vitamins

How much vitamin D do you need?

▶ The more sunlight the better Because Canada has relatively low levels of sunlight, make sure you get enough vitamin D. "There is a growing body of evidence that vitamin D can help prevent MS and other diseases," says Karen Lee, a scientist and assistant vice president of the MS Society of Canada. Health Canada recommends 600 IU of vitamin D through daily food intake and up to 4000 IU through supplementation.

GET HELP, WHILE HELPING OTHERS...

Scientists at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health, in affiliation with the University of Toronto, are conducting a study of treatments for depression. Participants will be offered 16 weeks of therapy or medication.

SYMPTOMS OF DEPRESSION INCLUDE:
• Feelings of sadness • Problems concentrating • Difficulty sleeping
• Low motivation • Loss of energy • Loss of interest or pleasure
• Weight gain or loss • Excessive feelings of guilt

If these symptoms sound familiar and you are aged 18-65, do not have an alcohol or substance use problem, and you are willing to receive psychotherapy or medication treatment for depression, you may be eligible to participate in our study. You can get help, and help others through your participation.

Please call 416.260.4199 for a confidential interview.

Get your beach body ready now

The guys at Bodyism Clinic are responsible for the strong, lean body of Transformers 3 actress Rosie Huntington Whiteley Co-owner James Duigan tells us how to get ready for the dreaded flesh baring season

ROMINA McGUINNESS
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

It's summer! But hear us out before you commit to some crazy juice fast and jog around your block 50 times to get into your teeny tiny bikini (or trunks).

James Duigan's book, Clean and Lean: Flat Tummy Fast! aims to get you toned and washboarded in just 14 days and before you gasp, yes it's possible.

"There are three crucial elements to change; nutrition, movement and mindset," says the co-owner of Bodyism.

Nutrition and mindset: eat 'clean'

"All transformation happens in the mind. The rest is details," says Duigan.

He believes that a body can only be lean if it's "clean."

"So many people have a toxic relationship with food that stops them from being clean."

The body stores toxins in its fat cells so if your diet is toxic, yes you will eventually lose fat, but slowly, as these will have no where to go but right back in your system, making you to feel tired and low in energy. Ironically, some diets make us more toxic, and weight loss becomes a struggle. Duigan swears by "clean," toxin free foods that are natural, unprocessed and devoid of chemicals to lose the weight and keep it off.

"Sugar is the number one culprit for getting out of shape," says Duigan, who refers to it as a "nuclear fat bomb" exploding all over your body.

Clean eating

Choose foods that:

- Have no fake flavouring.
- Don't last for months in the cupboard but go off relatively fast as they contain no preservatives.
- Have no more then five or six ingredients.
- Are close to their natural state: an apple looks the same as hanging off the tree but fries look nothing like a potato.
- Contain no ingredients you can't pronounce or recognize.
- Don't make you feel gassy, bloated or full.
- Don't list sugar as the main or top 3 ingredients.

Cut out the C.R.A.P.

Caffeine: OK in small doses. For coffee, more than two cups a day is excessive.

Refined sugars: These are no-nos: fruit juice, white bread, cakes and anything ending in 'ose' (fructose, glucose, sucrose)

Alcohol: It's full of sugar and stimulates the production of the hormone oestrogen.

Processed Foods: These break all the rules as they have been stripped of their natural goodness.

NEW HOPE FOR HAIR LOSS
Laser Hair Therapy
USING TLP™
BEFORE
AFTER
TLP™ IS A "NEW" NON-SURGICAL SCIENTIFIC APPROACH FOR MEN AND WOMEN TO HELP CONTROL THINNING HAIR, BALDNESS AND PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH THE SCALP.
This cold laser creates a soft halo of light around the scalp. Laser hair therapy is a medically tested, safe and proven method using low level laser energy, or "soft cold" laser light to effectively treat and control problem hair loss and encourage new growth.
WILL IT WORK FOR ME?
Laser Therapy is equally effective for both men and women. Most participants will see tangible response within a short period of time after commencing treatment, with results enhanced as the program continues.
In fact, past studies have shown a 93% increase in hair among the respondents using Cold Laser Therapy. For those clients not able to come to our clinic on a regular basis, a home laser program is available.
During your initial consultation and assessment, it will be determined if you are a good candidate for Laser Therapy. If so, your results are assured and backed by our exclusive guarantee.

Cute factor isn't enough

Uncle Betty's Diner may have a great name but the food doesn't match

LUNCH RUSH

STEPHANIE DICKISON
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

Cute name, right? And with menu items like mini sliders, chili fries and vodka creamsicles, it's a fun concept.

Unfortunately, the drab room echoes with loud voices and noise, making it feel more like Chuck E. Cheese than a charming neighbourhood restaurant.

The food, too, is merely OK.

A Chicago Frank ($10), steamed with a snappy casing, is topped with sliced tomatoes, sport peppers, fresh onions, pickle spear and celery. Ordinary, but fine. The fresh salad with zesty citrus dressing though, is delightful.

All-Day Breakfast ($7) with two eggs and toast with your choice of meat and home fries or salad is good, but again, nothing new here.

Name brands are a part of the kitsch factor.

We sip on Kicking Horse coffee ($2) and indulge in delicious, cakey Kressler donuts ($1 each), but the food should be at least as good as the doughnuts, if not better.

DINING WITH THE BOSS, 101

CHARLES THE BUTLER

ASKCHARLES THEBUTLER@METRONEWS.CA

FOR MORE, VISIT CHARLES MACPHERSON.COM

▶ Brush up on the latest news, master your table manners, but most importantly, be yourself when invited over to someone's home for dinner.

Dear Charles the Butler,
My wife and I have been invited for the first time to my boss's house for dinner. We are both very nervous. We live a casual lifestyle, but my boss and his wife live very formally. Tips please!
Nervous Couple

Dear Nervous couple:

Going to your employer's for dinner is stressful at the best of times.

But alas, one must overcome social fears, especially if one wishes to succeed in long-term business relationships.

Etiquette is about confidence building, allowing you to be comfortable in most situations.

As a child, my parents laboured tirelessly to teach me table manners — no fingers even for chicken wings! I fought them both tooth and nail.

Soon enough I noticed that when I went to my friends' houses for dinner, their parents would say, "Why can't you learn to eat correctly like Charles?" And that made me feel proud and confident.

Here is all you need to know to enjoy dinner with your boss — with confidence.

1. Take the time to learn how to correctly hold and use a fork and a knife — and practice, practice practice. If at any point you don't know what to do, take a deep breath and follow the hostess.

2. Read the newspaper for one week prior to the dinner. This will allow you to be aware of what is going on in the world and add to the discussion.

3. See what the dress code is. If it's not clear don't be afraid to call and ask. If you are dressed appropriately you will feel more comfortable at the dinner.

4. Last but never least, be yourself! Don't put on any pretence — being sincere and genuine is by far the most important. Now go and have a great time!

My wife posts personal information Facebook. How do I make her stop?

Angela says ...

Have you spoken to her about it? She could be oblivious to your embarrassment.

Men and women have very different views on what's 'personal' in a relationship.

Derek says...

Some people are completely unaware of boundaries, though I'm sure that would have materialized before now. If talking doesn't work, you may need to employ some digital revenge. Just be prepared for a change in her Facebook relationship status.

What's your stance on PDA?

Angela says ...

Context is everything when it comes to public displays of affection. A couple in an embrace at the airport can warm the heart. But a couple groping one another at your dinner party is just tacky.

Derek says...

Less is more. Keep it toned down and strictly PG — imagine the FCC is watching and ready to slap a fine.

Add heat or cool it down — surviving summer love

Metro speaks with a handful of love experts who offer five steps for enjoying a steamy hot summer romance

KARIN WASTESON
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS

1 How to find the right type for a summer fling: Since it's summer, any terrain will be well stocked with holidaying hotties. "Whatever the activity is, tell your love interest you'd enjoy meeting up at some specific event," says Leil Lowndes, author of How to Make Anyone Fall in Love With You.

2 How to write a sexy text: Now is the time to get sexual with the written word. Or at least the typed version. Swedish relationship specialist Eva Rusz recommends you be anatomical in your prose. "Describe what body part you really long for," she advises. But remember: "It can be as sexy to swoon for a person's brain as a person's private area."

3 How to overcome jealousy: Even on a far-flung vacation, jealousy can rear its ugly head. But as Simone Bienne, a TV relationship expert in the U.K., advises: "when a jealous thought creeps into your mind, shout stop. This can be super effective in managing your problem."

4 How to know when it's time to cool your summer romance: When the alluring mystique of your holiday lover is no longer there, then it's high time to end the romance in a swift and painless manner.
"If you no longer feel excited to see the person, if you are no longer intrigued by him or her, then you'd better call off the relationship," says Blaire Allison, the self-proclaimed "initiative heart healer" and blogger of LoveGuru.net.

5 How to write a love letter: But if the embers of your fiery summer romance still glow a little, how about rekindling that flame with a traditional, far-from-cheesy love letter? "Firstly, spell the person's name correctly. Anything after calling 'Ellen' 'Susan' won't matter," warns Bill Shapiro, former editor of Life magazine and author of Other People's Love Letters: 150 Letters You Were Never Meant to See.

"The letters with the most resonance are those that capture a specific moment and how you thought about the person. Honesty counts for so much. 'Jesus, I love your smile', or 'every time you walk towards me, I feel something'.

You want to catch the spirit of the meeting right away when you put pen to paper," Shapiro says.

▶ Ahh, this feels nice. Creating extra sizzle in a summer romance is much easier than you think, say the pros.

7 drawbacks of working at home

ON MONEY

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

I've worked at home for more than 25 years and almost everyone I know who doesn't, envies me.

There are workplace benefits galore: short commute, no wardrobe issues, few distractions, no time clock and excellent coffee.

But it's not Shangri-La. So as a public service to all you work-at-home wannabes, here is a list of drawbacks.

ISTOCK IMAGES

▶ Alison's money rule: Make working from home effective with a strict schedule and a do not disturb sign.

1. The if-you're-at home-you-can't-be-working effect
This can range from unexpected and unwanted drop-ins during prime work hours to family calling for a lengthy chinwag.

2. No water cooler!
It can get lonely with no coworkers for time-wasting chats. I've found myself trying to keep delivery people hanging around for company.

3. No work, no pay.
Sure you can take a break or vacation any time you want, but when you're not working you don't get paid. Most self-employed people I know rarely take holidays. And sick days? Forget about it!

4. The office is always open.
Nights and weekends are fair game because the office is right there. Even on a Sunday morning an unfinished job seems to find you and push the guilt button. And employers know you're there so they don't hesitate to call outside normal office hours.

5. Hey! I'm working here!
Guests never seem to get it that you have a job to do when you're in the office.

Recently I had a visitor who loudly sang off key while I tried to work to a deadline.

6. Too many bosses!
Everyone you do business with is a potential boss. Juggling them all is often a challenge.

7. The kids hate it.
When mine were in the tween and teen years they yearned to be latchkey kids.

How can you get into after school trouble if Mom is always there when you get off the school bus?

Homebodies

- Nearly 12 per cent of all paid employees in Canada work at home.
- Twenty-five per cent work at home because it is a job requirement.

A POCKET GUIDE TO WORKPLACE PRIVACY

WORKPLACE LAW

DANIEL LUBLIN
DAN@TORONTO-EMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM
TWITTER: @DANLUBLIN

As the boundaries between employees' personal and work lives become increasingly blurred, we receive more and more questions about the boundaries of privacy in the workplace. Consider this your cheat sheet on some of the more commonly asked questions at work:

ISTOCK

▶ Peeved at the big cheese? Don't post it on the internet. Employers have grounds to reprimand employees based on social media posts.

Medical information
Does your employer have a "right" to your entire medical history when you request a medical leave? The answer is no. An employer has a right to know when you will return and what accommodation, if any, you require.

Facebook and Twitter
Once you post information online, it is no longer private. Consider whether comments you make at the workplace would merit discipline. If so, the fact those comments are virtual makes no difference. Also, beware of the status update. In one recent case where an employee took time off to mourn the death of a friend but then posted that he was "in the City and ready to party," his employer fired him for dishonesty. Can you blame them?

References
I am often asked whether it is "legal" for a former employer to provide a negative reference. Generally, the answer is yes. As long as an opinion is honestly provided, the individual providing it cannot be successfully sued, even if you disagree with what was said. Further, when you provide the name of a reference to a prospective employer, you implicitly provide permission to contact him or her.

Surveillance
There is generally no "right" to privacy in the workplace, although there are exceptions. Surveillance evidence, for example, can only be used if there is a reasonable basis to justify it, such as employee theft, and after appropriate warnings. In a recent Ontario case, the court found that a hidden camera secretly installed in a manager's office had no basis to be there and awarded an employee severance even though she had resigned.

Workplace computers
While there is no right to privacy in personal information held in employer's computers, an appellate court recently concluded that information within personal computers used for work does not belong to your employer. Although the distinction seems subtle, this ruling could extend to personal BlackBerrys and cellphones, meaning that whoever owns the device owns all of the contents, regardless of what it is used for.

Wimbledon. Big names bounced

▶ Venus Williams returns a shot to Tsvetana Pironkova yesterday.

Williams sisters exit Wimbledon, as does Wozniacki

Venus and Serena Williams were both eliminated in the fourth round of Wimbledon yesterday, the first time in five years that neither sister will play in the quarter-finals at the All England Club. Also knocked out was top-seeded Caroline Wozniacki, who fell 1-6, 7-6 (5), 7-5 to No. 24 Dominika Cibulkova. Six-time men's champion Roger Federer survived a scare, dropping his first set of the tournament before coming back to down Mikhail Youzhny 6-7 (5), 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 to reach his 29th successive Grand Slam quarter-final.

Sinclair a reluctant hero

Canadian captain tries to avoid the spotlight after playing through broken nose to score against Germany ◐ She will wear a face mask Thursday when Canada returns to the field

Christine Sinclair played the role of reluctant hero yesterday.

The Canadian soccer captain made headlines Sunday for bending in a free kick for a highlight-reel goal despite breaking her nose in a 2-1 loss to Germany at the FIFA Women's World Cup.

Within hours of the game, Sinclair was trending on Twitter, and still was a full 24 hours later.

"When I woke up for breakfast this morning, (teammate Robin Gayle) said, 'You can scrap it off your bucket list, you trended last night.' I said, 'I don't even know what that means,'" Sinclair said with a laugh.

But while the 28-year-old from Burnaby, B.C., might have been big news Sunday night, she wanted little to do with the spotlight the next day — especially if there were cameras involved. She met with a small group of reporters in a hotel lobby,

"It was painful, but there was so much adrenalin."
CHRISTINE SINCLAIR

but paused when she walked off the elevator and spotted a camera.

"There is nothing good about this," Sinclair said, pointing to her nose and frowning.

Sinclair had her nose broken by a hard elbow from Germany's Babett Peter, but stayed in the game — against the wishes of the team's medical staff.

She had her nose reset in a Berlin hospital, and spent yesterday morning being fitted for a protective face mask. She isn't thrilled with the thought of actually wearing it Thursday when the sixth-ranked Canadians face No. 7 France in a game Canada can't afford to lose.

"I'm going to try to convince (the medical staff) to not make me wear it," Sinclair said. "I've heard it's not fun to wear. Your vision is limited."

The mask is similar to the one worn by Italian soccer star Marco Materazzi or Detroit Pistons guard Richard Hamilton.

For now, she has a flesh-coloured hard brace protecting her nose.

Sinclair shrugged off talk of being a big deal back home.

"No, I have no idea, it's been a hectic day," she said. "I haven't even called my parents yet."

Dodgers file for bankruptcy protection

One of baseball's proudest franchises is in tatters, its future to be decided not on the field but in the courtroom.

The Los Angeles Dodgers filed for bankruptcy protection in a Delaware court yesterday, blaming Major League Baseball for refusing to approve a multibillion-dollar TV deal that owner Frank McCourt was counting on to keep the troubled franchise afloat.

McCourt, upset that baseball commissioner Bud Selig rejected the proposed TV deal last week, hopes a federal judge will approve $150 million US in financing to be used for daily operations, which would give him more time to seek a more favourable media contract. A hearing is set for today in Wilmington, Del.

Bieksa would have become an unrestricted free agent Friday.

Jays' quick trip to Motor City ends in defeat

Toronto stops in Detroit at end of road trip to make up for May rainout

Jhonny Peralta hit a tiebreaking triple in the eighth inning and Victor Martinez drove in two runs, leading the Detroit Tigers past the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2 last night.

Max Scherzer struck out nine over seven strong innings and the Tigers snapped Toronto's three-game winning streak.

With one out in the eighth, Magglio Ordonez singled off Marc Rzepczynski (2-2). Austin Jackson entered as a pinch-runner, and Shawn Camp came in to relieve Rzepczynski.

TIGERS	BLUE JAYS

Peralta sliced a liner into the right-centre gap and Jose Bautista missed an attempt at a sliding catch. The ball rolled to the wall before centre-fielder Rajai Davis could retrieve it, giving Peralta a standup triple.

After the Blue Jays intentionally walked Alex Avila, Ryan Raburn beat out a double-play ball to drive in the fourth run.

Jose Valverde earned his 18th save in as many attempts. Toronto put two on in the ninth, but Juan Rivera hit into a game-ending double play.

Toronto's Zach Stewart gave up two runs in six innings and Adam Lind hit his 16th homer for the Blue Jays. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

REAL TESTIMONIALS

We were always happy together but all of the sudden we couldn't stand to even look at each other. We went to couples therapy but nothing helped the hatred and lack of understand between us. The Shaman was able to detect the witchcraft that a co-worker had imposed on us because he liked me. The Shaman cured us, protected us and brought us together.

John (Sweetie)
My Dearest Sweetheart, in my wildest imaginings I never thought I would meet someone like you. You are everything I always thought a man should be and more. You are the one who is amazing and I adore you for that. Even though we are so far apart you still (to quote your favourite band U2) "Lift my days, and light up my nights" xoxo.

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Open up a bit and let others know how you think and how you feel.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Your loyalty is impressive, but what about common sense?

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Friends and family will rally round and help you out of a jam.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 If someone takes liberties with you today you must hit back.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Your self-belief will see you through what could be a tricky day.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Don't allow yourself to react to the kind of provocation that most others times would go right over your head.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 A clash of wills is inevitable over the next 24 hours.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 TYou may be under a bit of stress at the moment but it will bring out the best in you. kick-start your summer.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Get things done and, more importantly, get powerful people on your side.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 It would be easy to let your anger get the better of you today – and a huge mistake.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You are in no mood to sit back and let things happen – you want to reach out and get involved – but you would be wise to listen to what other people tell you.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Someone will question your commitment to a cause — do they have a point? SALLY BROMPTON
